

North Herts Museum News: follow the work on Flickr

North Hertfordshire District Council maintains a Flickr page that includes photographs of the redevelopment work to provide the district with a new museum and an up-to-date community facility for Hitchin. The museum photographs can be seen in their own album.

The front of the new museum takes shape: a view across Brand Street from the Old Town Hall

I have been taking photographs regularly to document the work, beginning before the contractors first arrived on site, which will remain part of the museum's archives. Eventually, we will be able to show before and after views.
